

ANTONY GORMLEY

3x ANOTHER TIME, SAINSBURY CENTRE FOR VISUAL ARTS, UNIVERSITY OF EAST ANGLIA, NORWICH, ENGLAND, 2017

This project launches an initiative to develop a sculpture park at the University of East Anglia.

3x ANOTHER TIME comprises three life-sized cast iron sculptures selected from Gormley's ongoing series Another Time (1999-2013) which has been presented in locations across the world. The sculptures will be placed around the university at different focal points and sightlines, including roof level.

This installation builds on an existing sculpture trail which includes works by Henry Moore, Ian Tyson, Lilliane Lijn and John Hoskin in the grounds of the Sainsbury Centre and around the UEA campus.

Antony Gormley describes the works as: "still moments of lived time placed in space. I like the feeling of the campus and its openness to the sky and the changing conditions of light and weather.

Between the undercroft of the library and its exposed parapets and the teaching wall I hope the work engages with the life of the university and with elemental conditions."
